FOR THE ARTS, HUMANITIES, RECREATION,
EDUCATION AND ECOLOGY.

THEATER IN THE WORKS

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign is a $7.5 million fund-raising effort to complete ten major renovations projects within the historic Piers and Landmark Buildings of Fort Mason Center. To date, over $4 million has been raised.

Fort Mason Foundation is pleased to announce the successful completion of fund-raising for the Cowell Theater. This bayfront theater, located at the outer end of Pier 2, will be an affordable multipurpose facility for nonprofit performers and presenters. Named in recognition of a generous grant from the S. H. Cowell Foundation, the midsize theater (425 seats) will provide space for music, dance, film and performance events by local as well as touring companies.

According to Marc Kasky, Executive Director of Fort Mason Center, "A cooperative planning process, including Theatre Bay Area, San Francisco Bay Area Dance Coalition, San Francisco International Film Festival, City Celebration, Fort Mason performance companies, theater critics and producers, has contributed to the overall design and ensures that various needs will be met." This cooperative spirit will continue with the formation of a Cowell Theater Advisory Board.

Either from an outdoor promenade, or through a protected interior corridor, one will enter the spacious lobby of the Cowell Theater with its sweeping views of San Francisco Bay. A cafe will be located adjacent to the theater. The high ceilings of the existing pier structure will make possible unique designs for lighting, scenery, staging and acoustics within the performance space.

This complex will also be ideally suited for benefit events, exhibitions, lectures, performances and receptions. Daytime use for a variety of community services will further enhance the financial base of the theater. Just as Fort Mason Center is self-supporting, the operating costs of the Cowell Theater will be self-generated through use of the facility.

Fort Mason Foundation is especially grateful to those foundations and corporations whose generosity has made possible this exciting addition to Fort Mason Center. AT&T, the S. H. Cowell Foundation, Crescent Porter Hale Foundation, The James Irvine Foundation, The Kresge Foundation, The Gap, First Interstate Bank of California, U. S. Leasing International, Glendale Federal Savings, and a group of Japanese corporations led by the Bank of California.

Construction will begin in the fall of this year. Look for a grand opening in the spring of 1988.

The Cowell Theater is just one of many Capital Campaign projects described in previous issues of the Calendar. For more information, call 441-3400.

FINE CRAFTS AND FOLK ART

The American Craft Council again presents the Pacific States Craftfair at Fort Mason. More than 350 creators of unique handmade objects have been invited to participate, selected for their outstanding work by a committee of experienced craft leaders from more than 1600 applicants. The show and sale is open to the public, in Piers 2 and 3, on Friday, August 7, from 11am to 8pm; Saturday, August 8, from 11am to 6pm; and Sunday, August 9, from 11am to 5 pm. General admission is $4; tickets may be purchased at the door. On Wednesday and Thursday, August 5 and 6, the show is open to the trade only (appropriate credentials must be presented to enter). For information, call 526-5073.

The San Francisco Craft and Folk Art Museum Auction takes place on August 7 in the Fort Mason Conference Center in Building A. Contemporary crafts and folk art from around the world may be previewed from 11am to 5pm. At 6pm, fine wines and international hors d'oeuvres will be served; the auction will take place from 6 to 8pm. Admission to the auction is $20 per person. For information, call the Museum from 12 noon to 5pm, Wednesday through Sunday, 775-0990.

FMC UPDATE—ECOLOGY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Fort Mason Center is most often associated with art exhibitions, theater performances and cultural events. But it is also a base for many environmental groups, presenting a number of functions every month. In past and future issues, you can read about Environmental Traveling Companions, Greenpeace, Lifeline Marine Research, Marine Mammal Fund, Oceanic Society Expeditions and the Yacht Racing Association of San Francisco Bay. This month, we focus on a few other groups.

San Francisco, like many cities, has a critical problem: what to do with its garbage. One of the ways to reduce the 665,000 tons of trash that must be disposed of each year is recycling. Tucked away in the south end of the parking lot near the Gatehouse is San Francisco Community Recyclers, a nonprofit organization that has been a part of Fort Mason for over ten years. Formerly known as AM/FM Recycling, this mini-center is part of a network of buyback locations around the city. The public can either donate their aluminum cans, glass bottles, newspaper, computer paper and white office paper, or be paid for these materials. In addition, SFCCR provides a valuable service for Fort Mason Center by offering recycling assistance for special events like the KYA Garage Sale, the San Francisco Fair, and the Fourth of July celebration at Crissy Field, as well as regular pickups at Greens Restaurant and The Oceanic Society. Days of operation were recently expanded, with the facility now open every Friday and Saturday from 9am to 1pm. Visitors can come to enjoy an event and dispose of recyclables at the same time. For more information about services here, or for the center closest to you, call 285-0669.

Whale-watching expeditions are offered by the Oceanic Society every winter.

Besides offering a multitude of activities around the Bay Area, such as whale watches, sailing classes, summer Sea Camp and Sail Camp for children, field trips and marine science education in the schools, The San Francisco Bay Chapter of The Oceanic Society presents a monthly lecture series at Fort Mason Center, entitled "Man and the Sea Open House." The series is designed to raise public awareness about issues related to the ocean, and to encourage interest in The Oceanic Society. During the first half hour of the open house, participants enjoy refreshments and the opportunity to meet staff directors and program leaders, as well as other Oceanic Society members and friends. Just before the evening's presentation, staff and members announce upcoming programs, new developments, and opportunities for volunteers to help out with special events and activities. Lectures cover a wide range of topics, from a presentation on what it was like to round Cape Horn on a square-rigger in 1929 to toxic hot spots around the Bay to life on the Farallon Islands. The next Man and the Sea Open House is on Monday, August 3, from 6:30 to 9pm. Admission is free for Oceanic Society members, $2 for non-members. For more information, call 441-5970.

Friends of the River is a grassroots nonprofit conservation organization dedicated solely to protecting and restoring freeflowing rivers throughout the West. Appropriately, they also sponsor an annual series of whitewater river rafting trips every Thursday and Friday during the summer, and every Saturday and Sunday in the fall. The adventurous may enjoy a thrilling ride through the heart of the Gold Rush country on the South Fork of the American River. From Chili Bar Reservoir to Folsom Lake, you can experience twenty-five exhilarating and forgiving rapids which cut through some of the most varied geology in the Sierras. Raft for one day, or take advantage of the two-day option, which includes overnight camping. The cost of the trip is $40 per person for members of Friends of the River and groups of six, $45 for non-members. A significant percentage of this fee goes to support Friends of the River's community organizing, lobbying, research, and litigation on behalf of the remaining freeflowing rivers in the West. Two-week advance reservations are recommended, and may be arranged by calling 771-0400.

The Fund for Animals is an organization working for animal rights and the humane treatment of animals throughout the world. Members do research, publish articles, provide testimony, and work to educate both children and adults. On the first Saturday of every month, they host an orientation meeting entitled "Get Active for Animals" for all who are interested in finding out how to become involved in animal rights issues. The next meeting is on Saturday, August 1, at 1pm. For more information, call 474-4020.

On the first Friday of every month, members of The Underwater Photographic Society host a meeting that is open to the public. Even if you're not a photographer, these meetings offer an enjoyable evening for anyone interested in the world under the sea. Society members from all over the world present lectures, multimedia slide shows, or movies on topics ranging from diving in the Philippines to an examination of Monterey Bay. You can also find out how to become a member of the Society, and get the latest information on Society-sponsored events like photo competitions and diving trips. The next meeting to be held at Fort Mason Center will be Friday, September 4, from 7:30 to 10pm. For more information, call 537-9249.
